

Natalie Gulbrandsen Ministerial Scholarship Fund for International Studies 2008-2009

The Natalie Gulbrandsen Ministerial Scholarship Fund for International Studies has been established to provide opportunities for ministers and candidates for ministry to engage in meaningful ways in a developing country for academic, interfaith or social justice purposes.

The fund has been created to honor the work of Natalie Gulbrandsen who made enormous contributions to the life of the Unitarian Universalist Association and its presence in international, interfaith and cross-cultural relationships. Ministers and candidates who are interested in broadening their liberal religious knowledge and understandings, and in strengthening their international sympathies, by immersing themselves in or studying in a developing country are encouraged to apply.

GRANT GUIDELINES:

Grants will be made to individuals who are Unitarian Universalist ministers serving in a congregation or community setting or candidates for ministerial fellowship..

Grants will be made to individuals in order that they may have meaningful exposure to developing countries. The goal is that their ministry may be informed by an understanding of the nature and consequences of poverty and of the economic differential between nations and regions of the world.

Developing countries shall be defined as those falling in the lower 50% of the nations of the world economically, as determined by the United Nations Human Development Report or other such indices.

Grants of at least $1000 will be made for projects of an academic, interfaith, or social justice nature.
