

“Quote Me!”

An honest search for the truth...

A few months ago, I began to write down various quotes, phrases, and thoughts that I'd stumble across on my own search for truth and meaning. Every time I heard a statement that connected with me or thought of an idea that made sense to me, I would jot it down in my Blackberry. I entitled this collection of insights, “Words of Wisdom.” From time to time, I'll sit and scroll through the list, and it is always interesting to see my own thoughts and the thoughts of others. I share this list with you, as I have found this practice to be intriguing, grounding, and enlightening all at the same time. It is my hope that you find your own way of gathering wisdoms of the world, and share them with others. I wish you well...

(I copied this list exactly as it is found in my blackberry. I am choosing not to explain any of the contents, as I feel it is more interesting if I do not. Some of it may not even make sense, but it is what it is. If I offend anyone, my apologies, as that is not my intention.)
