Youth Envoy Program

Youth Envoys represent the link between the UU United Nations Office and their congregation's Youth Group. As high-school-age Unitarian Universalists, these passionate young people bring action and energy to the congregation's efforts to think globally while acting locally. Through the UU-UNO, Youth Envoys have access to opportunities for leadership, learning, social action, and community building. They are encouraged to attend the UU-UNO's annual Intergenerational Spring Seminar and be active in planning their congregation's UN Sunday service.

Youth Envoy Responsibilities

- Share information and resources to raise awareness and support of UN issues and UU-UNO programs within the congregation and youth group.
- Mobilize other youth in the congregation to take action for international social justice, peace, and development.
- Collaborate with other congregants and youth to lead a multigenerational United Nations Sunday service once per year.
- Participate in Youth Envoy conference calls, virtual training sessions, and networking events, connecting with other Envoys and Youth Envoys around the U.S. and Canada.
- Help the congregation to achieve Blue Ribbon Congregation status.
