Lifespan Anti-Racism Curriculum Series Advisory Team
Request for Proposals

Background: The Commission on Institutional Change’s report, Widening the Circle of Concern, recommended that an “OWL–like” (lifespan) curriculum on anti-racism is developed. To answer this call, the UUA’s Lifespan Faith Engagement office will develop a lifespan curriculum series using multimedia “playlists” for various age groups (K-adult).

The overall goals of this curriculum series are:

1. To collaboratively develop a series of modular playlist-formatted lessons for each age group.
2. To create lessons that will be relevant to the aims of faith development for each age group, as well as to our growing understanding of best practices and justice-centered parlance that arise out of BIPOC movements to decolonize and decenter whiteness.
3. To create lessons with virtual, in-person, and multi-platform learning environments in mind.

Scope of Work: The UUA is accepting applications to form an advisory team for the purposes of defining appropriate learning goals, as well as generating a list of possible lesson topics for each age group/cohort. The time commitment will be approximately 30 hours (including 2-3 zoom meetings, answering email, and contributing to shared work documents), January- June, 2022, with the option of continuing on in a similar capacity with this project, beginning in July, 2022. All meetings will be held remotely. Compensation will be a stipend of $1,500.

Qualifications: An ideal candidate will meet all or most of the following criteria:

- Is a current or former UU religious professional
- Has experience at the intersection of education theory, faith development theory, and of race/racial identity development
- Possesses a deep knowledge of current anti-racism analysis and practice.
- Bonus: Has experience in curriculum development.

To apply, submit a resume or summary of qualifications and a cover letter of interest to Marisol Caballero (mcaballero@uua.org) by December 15, 2021.
