There were ten applicants for the Art scholarships this year and nine awards. The applicants were considered on the basis of financial need and commitment to UU values as expressed in their essays and CVs. The committee also examined the submitted portfolios of work for artistic vision and execution. The decisions are often difficult – all applicants are committed to their art and inspired by their UU faith tradition. The awardees are promising and talented young artists, some especially so, and this year, six are returnees. We thank the members of the committee who brought their own skills and talents to the thoughtful selection of recipients:
