

FEBRUARY 2015

Application for Congregational Membership

Unitarian Universalist Fellowship of Benton County

Introduction

Each year at General Assembly a colorful parade of hundreds of banners from many of our member congregations energizes the Opening Plenary. The parade is a powerful visual statement of our diversity and unity as a religious organization. In becoming a member congregation of the Unitarian Universalist Association, your congregation's strength and vision joins this living religious tradition.

As stated in the UUA Bylaws, "The primary purpose of the Association is to serve the needs of its member congregations, organize new congregations, extend and strengthen Unitarian Universalist institutions, and implement its principles." Consequently, we unite in this Association to provide services that individual congregations cannot provide for themselves. Each affiliated congregation becomes associated with one of district or regional offices. Through these structures, member congregations have access to a variety of programs and services, including resources on our web site, in

- Lifespan faith development, religious education
- Congregational growth including racial and cultural diversity
- Congregational finances
- Social action and justice making initiatives for the denomination and congregations
- Ministry and professional leadership including settlement
- Lay leadership development and support

In addition, your congregation may send delegates/participants to our annual General Assembly as well as to a variety of trainings, conferences and gatherings held at the local and Association level.

More than 1,000 congregations in the United States, Canada, and throughout the world are members of the Association. Each congregation is democratic in process, governing itself. Becoming a member congregation in the UUA unites you with our on-going history as a religious organization that combines two traditions: The Universalists, who organized in 1793, and the Unitarians, who organized in 1825. These two merged into the Unitarian Universalist Association in 1961.

Unitarian Universalism is a liberal religion with Jewish and Christian roots. We have no creed. Our principles call us to affirm the worth and dignity of human beings, to advocate freedom of belief and the search for truth and meaning. We strive to provide an inclusive and supportive community for people who believe that living our UU principles is a much-needed witness in our world. As a member of a congregation of the UUA, you commit yourself to affirming and promoting our Unitarian Universalist purposes and principles in your life and as an active member of your congregation.

Amendments

Amendments to the Articles of Incorporation, or to these Bylaws, may be made at duly called Congregational Meetings, and voted upon, affirmatively, by at least two-thirds (2/3) of those present and voting. The content of such amendments shall be stated in the notice or call for the Congregational Meeting as prescribed in these bylaws.

RE: Unitarian Universalists of Benton County
Application for Membership

Dear UUA Board:

The good folk in Bentonville, Arkansas have been in discernment of what a Unitarian Universalist community might be and become for the last five years. Three years ago, they reached out to the Southern Region's staff (Reverend Susan Smith) to establish relationships and to move toward "emerging status."

They have established a credible approach to their Sunday meetings. Like many lay-led congregations, they are still learning what it means to be "in worship." However, they are grounding themselves well in our Unitarian Universalist faith and practice, honoring and relying upon our heritage and principles. They have good in-take of new people and membership orientation to ensure they understand that this is a Unitarian Universalist congregation. Further, they have membership expectations that will serve them well.

Currently, their nine member board is led to very experienced Unitarian Universalist leaders who have been in leadership positions in other congregations. Their procedures for selecting leaders is good. Their by-laws are appropriate for a congregation of this size and include provisions for ministerial leadership should they continue to grow.

Bentonville is a small, northwest Arkansas community with no other Unitarian Universalist presence. The next nearest congregation is in Fayetteville, about 45 minutes to the south.

We have encouraged the congregation to participate in cluster, district, and regional events so they may strengthen their ties with the faith.

They are taking all the appropriate steps. Thus, I am pleased to recommend their admission to the larger fellowship of our Association.

Dear UUA Board,

I fully endorse chartering the Unitarian Universalists of Benton County, Arkansas, (UUBC) to become a recognized UUA congregation. Talking with UUBC leadership about their vision for the future and reviewing their history, I see they are level headed and understanding of the challenges they face to grow and thrive. They are determined to take a solid five year growth effort and, with this move to be recognized and supported by the UUA, work to become a center for liberal religion in their region. I applaud this work, and believe that our UU voice in northwest Arkansas (NWA) would only be strengthened by bringing UUBC into the denomination.

The folks at UUBC know how much our voice and presence is needed in this religiously conservative part of the nation. Liberal religious education for adults and children are welcomed by many who feel marginalized, and programs like OWL are actively asked for by organizations like Planned Parenthood and educational groups. UUBC sent members to OWL training recently (training with our own new teachers) showing commitment to this vital program. UUBC can become an important link in liberal religion in NWA, they are part of a growing population area that, with care and work, can sustain and grow the congregation. Our denomination needs to support their efforts.

I've met with UUBC leadership, and a few of their members at our Arkansas UU Cluster gatherings, and am convinced of their sincerity and work ethic. I am invited to speak with the community in the near future, and we hope to build collaborative relationships between the congregation I serve (UU Fayetteville, AR), UUBC, and the growing Arkansas UU Cluster of Fellowships and Churches. The folks at UUBC are eager to become "mainstream" in the Unitarian Universalist covenantal tradition. They, and I, hope it will help them to grow stronger and more influential in a part of northwest Arkansas that needs our saving message. I hope, and ask, that you welcome them into our Unitarian Universalist Association.

Sincerely,

James N. Parrish

Covenant of the Unitarian Universalists of Benton County

We, the members of Unitarian Universalists of Benton County covenant to affirm right relations¹ and promote our "Principles and Practices" and to promise "one another our mutual trust and support."

A covenant of right relations is a set of guidelines to create a welcoming, respectful, safe and vibrant spiritual community. This purpose is served through respectful communication amongst individuals when engaging in congregational activities. Such guidelines are meant to reduce the amount of conflict, misunderstandings and hurt feelings that can occur when people speak passionately about subjects important to them. Right relations are the foundation on which a safe congregation is based. As we work together to articulate our understanding of and affirm our commitment to the practice of right relations, we will enrich our ability to love, respect, and nurture each other in our lifelong spiritual quests.

Conflict is normal in healthy relationships. Disagreement, ideally, communicates caring and involvement. When practicing right relations, people may disagree vigorously but still treat each other respectfully, stay connected, and learn together. Power is shared. A sense of well being pervades the congregation as people minister to one another. This allows each of us to choose with intention and act with integrity on what we believe and value, in a framework of respectful relationship with members of the Congregation, community and wider world.

As members of the UUBC Congregation, the following guidelines are in place in order to create our own welcoming, respectful, safe and vibrant spiritual community where each person can search for truth and meaning in an environment that builds connections, renews spirit, and inspires action. While realizing that we do not always live up to our ideals, we know we can choose to grow in a manner that promotes a religious community grounded in love and justice. In pledging to follow these guidelines, we will serve our own spiritual development, one another, our religious home, our local community, our larger faith, and our world.

Principles and Practices

- The inherent worth and dignity of every person;
- Justice, equity and compassion in human relations;
- Acceptance of one another and encouragement to spiritual growth in our congregations;
- A free and responsible search for truth and meaning;
- The right of conscience and the use of the democratic process within our congregations and in society at large;
- The goal of world community with peace, liberty and justice for all;
- Respect for the interdependent web of all existence of which we are a part.

The living tradition which we share draws from many sources:

- Direct experience of that transcending mystery and wonder, affirmed in all cultures, which moves us to a renewal of the spirit and an openness to the forces which create and uphold life;
- Words and deeds of prophetic women and men which challenge us to confront powers and structures of evil with justice, compassion and the transforming power of love;
- Wisdom from the world's religions which inspires us in our ethical and spiritual life;

- Jewish and Christian teachings which call us to respond to God's love by loving our neighbors as ourselves;
- Humanist teachings which counsel us to heed the guidance of reason and the results of science, and warn us against idolatries of the mind and spirit;
- Spiritual teachings of Earth-centered traditions which celebrate the sacred circle of life and instruct us to live in harmony with the rhythms of nature.

Grateful for the religious pluralism which enriches and ennoble our faith, we are inspired to deepen our understanding and expand our vision. As free congregations we enter into this covenant, promising to one another our mutual trust and support.

Members will strive to do the following as they participate in the life of the Congregation:

- Welcome and engage members and visitors alike, encouraging them to join in Congregation activities
- Value and express our own emotions and differences in a way that respects the worth and dignity of each person.
- Express gratitude for the efforts of others
- Listen attentively to appreciate fully another's point of view, valuing the perspective of others
- Support and encourage the personal and spiritual growth of others, acknowledging that each person has a unique path and truth
- Support and respect the contracts and/or agreements with the minister, staff, board and congregational committees
- Value confidentiality
- Ask for help, support and collaboration when needed and encourage others to do the same
- Build courage and commitment to voice our values in the world, and work toward positive relationships with other faith communities

- Provide opportunities to share diverse ideas in a safe place
- Approach disagreements and conflicts constructively, communicating with others in a direct, caring and responsible manner
- Advocate for mediation and resolution processes agreeable to all parties, when conflicts and misunderstandings arise within the Congregation
- Acknowledge that everyone makes mistakes. Seek and offer forgiveness.

This covenant is a living document. It can be reviewed by the congregation at any time in the future and adapted to fit changing needs and circumstances. It represents a commitment to thoughtful, active participation in the life of this religious community; caring and respectful relationships with one another and with visitors; cooperative support for the minister, staff and volunteers; and individual and collective contributions to the wider community.

We also commit to
