He noted that religious education enrollments have been flat for some time and that he continued to consider Beacon Press a financial risk though they ended fiscal year 03 ahead of plan.

REPORT OF THE GROWTH WORKING GROUP

Members of the Growth Working Group reported on their deliberations, saying that they had discussed congregational growth initiatives, including the establishment of a new growth team; the new anti-oppression consultancy; our international work; the web redesign work; and issues of the Board and transparency vis-à-vis its work. It was agreed that a cross-working group task force would be formed to consider new models for doing our international work.

They reported on their discussions regarding YRUU Bylaw changes.

PRESIDENT’S REPORT

President William G. Sinkford reported on public witness initiatives and efforts for growth in the Association, saying that many congregations were interested in using the “Uncommon Denomination” materials from the Kansas City marketing effort and that the new start in Dallas/Fort Worth was on track with conversations about similar efforts occurring throughout the country. He said that he was convening a growth team to coordinate the various growth initiatives.

Sinkford said that the new Anti-Racism Consultancy Program would be rolling out later this year, with ten congregations participating. Work has begun on a songbook that will include hymns composed by UUMA musicians since the publication of Singing the Living Tradition.

He noted that, at the 2004 General Assembly in Long Beach, CA, there will be many changes: the Service of the Living Tradition will be held on Friday evening; on Sunday morning people in the Long Beach community will be invited for worship in a “seeker service.” And he said that he hoped the Board and the Planning Committee would agree to use funds from the General Assembly Reserve Account to reduce the registration fee for congregational presidents so the Association can have a conversation among its leaders about the priorities for our faith in coming years.

The President reported that there was good energy about our congregations participating in voter registration efforts for the next year and that he was exploring a partnership with the Southern Christian Leadership Conference to support voter registration, voter turn-out, and poll-watching in selected, key counties.

Sinkford said that he had met twice with the new President of the Unitarian Universalist Service Committee, Charlie Clements, to explore collaborative efforts between the UUA and the UUSC. He also reported that he would be attending the NAACP’s religious leadership roundtable and that he was co-convening a gathering of progressive religious leaders in support of reproductive freedom and an upcoming march in Washington. In December, he said, he would be attending a gathering of the WCRP Council of Presidents, to be held in the Vatican.
