Key to terms in status report:

In Development: The program has been planned, and preparatory work is being done before authors actually start writing. Prep includes research, author selection, contract and timeline agreements, etc.

Writing: The authors are writing the curriculum in close collaboration with LFD staff who serve as developmental editors.

Editing: The complete manuscript has been received and is being edited for publication (and field test).

Field test: The program is published online in field test version with selected congregations providing detailed feedback. (Only the program Building the World We Dream About, a program addressing racism, is being field tested offline.)

Published: Curricula are published online. Some supplemental resources are published in print, as indicated. [The only curricula published in print are the UUA's Our Whole Lives sexuality education series.]
