Facts, Opinions & Values

Al Vernacchio, author of For Goodness Sex and relationship workshop contributor to OWL for Grades 7-9
Scenario 1

Jayden and Kai are in the 6th grade and friends. One day, when they are hanging out at Kai’s house after school watching silly videos online, Jayden tells Kai that a friend sent a link for them to check out. They follow the link, which is for a pornographic video site. It’s against Jayden’s religion to view any pictures of naked people. Jayden said it’s especially true before marriage.

What are the facts, opinions, and values in this scenario?
Scenario 2

Sofia and Luciana, 8th graders, are talking. Sofia says, “Girls don’t masturbate.” Luciana says, “Yes they do -- it’s a great way to relax and release sexual buildup. Plus, it’s a private way have sexual pleasure without the risk of pregnancy or sexually transmitted infection. When you are ready for sex, masturbation helps you learn how you like to be touched, so you can show a partner how to please you.”

What are the facts, opinions, and values in this scenario?
Scenario 3

Ishiko is 17 and pregnant and thinks she wants to get an abortion. She decides to talk to some friends and family about her decision. Jun, her partner, agrees with her decision. He feels they are both too young to get married, and he has a scholarship to go to college next year. Kazuko, Ishiko’s older sister, who became pregnant as a teen, was too afraid to talk to her parents, and had an abortion, which she now regrets. She feels guilty a lot and thinks Ishiko shouldn’t have the abortion. She’s also newly married and afraid she will have trouble getting pregnant because she’s had an abortion.

What are the facts, opinions, and values in this scenario?

Creating a Welcoming Space
Problem Solving: Scenario 1

You are running a junior high OWL group, and in the question box, someone asks, “My best friend is Christian, and she says that people who are LGBTQ are choosing a lifestyle of sin, and they are going to hell. How do I talk to her about this?”

How can you answer this question in a manner that is sensitive both to LGBTQ individuals and to people who share the friend’s beliefs?
A parent from a conservative non-Christian religion wants their child to participate in the 7th-9th grade Our Whole Lives/Sexuality and Our Faith program. The parent is concerned because their family does not believe their child should see images of anyone naked.

Using the OWL values, how do you respond?
Problem Solving: Scenario 3

At parent orientation, when the group is creating a covenant/agreements, someone suggests being non-judgmental. Another parent objects, saying, “Well, I have some pretty strong beliefs about openness in relationships, orientation, and identity. If someone thinks differently, I’ll have a hard time not being judgmental.”

How do you respond?
Problem Solving: Scenario 4

One person who came to Parent Orientation gave enthusiastic permission for their child to attend Our Whole Lives. The child’s other parent, who missed the orientation, pulls you aside one day and asks, “How you can be so affirming of different sexual orientations when the Bible clearly says that is not OK?”

What do you do?
