

Outside Speaker or Panel

Contact a local disability client advocate organization or a local chapter of a disability organization, and ask them if they have a representative who would be willing to speak at a forum, service, or other program sponsored by your congregation.

If you are successful at finding a speaker, meet with him or her to plan a program together, or to let the individual know the focus of the program that you or your congregational group are planning. A speaker can conceivably address a variety of themes such as disability care needs in your community, disability client resources, the latest programs for family members, etc.
